Families Matter to NCDB!

NCDB knows that families are the one consistent influence in their children's lives and the true experts in what they need for learning and development. To help families support their child's educational journey, NCDB, in collaboration with state deaf-blind projects and national family organizations, has developed a number of resources.

Visit our site to find the most current information on deaf-blindness and explore multiple learning opportunities. Learn how NCDB and the state projects are working to improve the lives of children with deaf-blindness through the following activities:

- Family Engagement
Family-to-family connections and support
- Early Identification & Referral
Finding and serving children early
- Literacy
Early communication and literacy development
- Transition
Preparing for a happy, successful adult life
- Intervenors and Qualified Personnel
The need for knowledgeable teachers and other service providers

Ways to Engage and Learn

■ NCDB Library

(nationaldb.org/library):

A large collection of online resources on all aspects of deaf-blindness where you can browse by topic or research specific questions.

■ Recursos En Español

(nationaldb.org/pages/show/recursos-en-espanol):

Many of the resources from the NCDB Library translated into Spanish.

■ Open Hands, Open Access: Deaf-Blind Intervenor Modules

(moodle.nationaldb.org):

A series of 27 online modules designed to train intervenors. Also a great resource for parents—you can sign up for free and work through them at your own pace.

■ For Families

(nationaldb.org/families):

Links to resources especially for families, including state and national organizations and state deaf-blind projects. Here you will also find our Families Matter video series (a new video story is posted every few months, each featuring a different family).

■ Facebook

(www.facebook.com/nationaldb):

Follow NCDB on Facebook! We post news stories, interesting resources, and family fun facts (Fridays).

Children Who Are Deaf-Blind

Although the term deaf-blind implies a complete absence of hearing and sight, in reality it refers to varying degrees of hearing and vision loss. The type and severity differ from person to person, but the key feature of this condition is that the combination of losses significantly limits an individual's ability to access auditory and visual information. The majority of children who are deaf-blind also have additional physical or cognitive disabilities or health problems.

When both vision and hearing are affected, especially from birth or early in life, natural opportunities to learn and communicate are severely limited. As a result, children who are deaf-blind require specialized teaching methods and intensive, individualized education and accommodations from infancy through young adulthood.

It is essential that families and educators have access to training and support regarding the assessment and education of infants, children, and youth who are deaf-blind. Each state has a federally-funded technical assistance project to provide this training and support. You can find contact information for the deaf-blind project in your state at nationaldb.org.
